American Visitors to the Land of the Rising Sun.

Many Tourists Have Been Looking That Way - For Ordinary Travelers It Is a Better Trip Than to England or the Continent.

own country has come to this for many Americans as have gone to the purpose, as he says, of 'looking Europe this summer had thought of at things." In an interview with a going to Japan both countries would reporter of the New York Sun, he be benefited. Besides the war, the spoke of the good esteem in which many books about Japan recently a hospitable nature, and have all heard of the Americans. In Yokohama we have always been accustomed to Americans, and I am sure that as many as two thousand of them have lived there longer than I can remember. But there are restrictions upon foreigners who want to travel over the country, and it is not everybody who can gain permission to do so.

"I am sure that Japan will yet be a great resort for American tourists. Before coming to New York I had visited Europe, and the thing that has struck me most since I arrived here is that this country is very much like the European countries I have seen. The streets there and here are the same; the residences and business buildings are the same; so are the manners and customs, the garb, the religion, the theaters, the food, and everything else. I do not understand why so many Americans go to England, or France, or Germany every year, and why they do not go to some country that is different from their own. When the American travels in Japan he sees things unlike any he ever saw before. The people are of another race; we have an ancient history and many things of antiquity; we have arts that are all our own; we have a social system that has descended to us from prehistoric times; you can go into Buddhist temples or into playl ouses unlike yours; you can everywhere notice the abiding influence of our two great religions, which you call pagan; you can see novelties of every kind, all on bands, in a country which is healthy and beautiful and orderly, and which is inhabited by a people whom foreigners characterize as excessive in their politeness. Japan is not a second edition of Europe; it is unlike any other nation in the world; it is a country for American tourists who want change; and I think that thousands of them will go every year hereafter.

"I think that more of the usual number of Americans have traveled to Japan this year because of the revelations made during the war with China. The war has brought more fame to Japan than all the other events that have occurred since the mythological ages. It has that hasu't got no clothes to keep the given the world at large some knowledge of Japanese life and character and history. It has taught mankind that we are not a country of barbarans or simpletons, and that we are not like the Chinese or the Hindoos or any other Asiatics. It has made many intelligent Americans curious to learn more about us. It has been the means of attracting hundreds of Americans to the country which A Japanese of distinction in his owes so much to Americans. It was their kindly spirit. One might believe that no American can read their language about my country without desiring to visit it. They may be assured that visitors will be welcome, more especially if Russia does not interfere with us. Yet another thing that has tended to promote the American interest in Japan is the coming of Japanese among There must be several thousand of Japanese in the United States, and many of them have got acquainted with your people, and have entered into business relations with them.'

A SORRY BULLHEAD.

Interfered with a Water Motor and

Came to a Bad End. One little bull-head species of the eatfish escaped from Lake McKusick some time since, and, no doubt, is sorry for it; we are, anyway. He came down the mains of the water company and floated up the pipes leading to our motor, where he stopped; so did our motor, presses, etc. He didn't use good judgment, as he went into the motor tail first, just fitting so that he stopped the machine. Had he gone at it head first, the opening was such that he wouldn't have stopped the machine and called into active service the waterworks man and a machinist. He would have kept going around in such a lively manner that, in the course of time, his mother-in-law wouldn't have recognized him. Bob Butler thinks he had him on his book once out in McKusick's lake, when he was a boy-Dab, not the fish-judging from his antiquated appearance. Friday is without question the proper day for fish, but catching them in a water motor is mighty unprofitable business. We never did like fish, and we hate 'em worse than ever now .- Stillwater

MANY LAWSUITS.

Citizens of the United States Are Great Litigants.

More Civil Cases Are Brought Before the Courts Here Than in Any Other Country in the World—Reasons for This.

A man of ingenious mind and apparently ample leisure has gone to the trouble of figuring out the number of lawsuits brought in each country in a year and he has reached the conclusion that the United States is a better country for attorneys and ber 4. counselors than any other civilized land under the sun, says the New York Sun. He figures as lawsuits civil actions only, taking into no account proceedings of a criminal character brought by the public authorities against individuals. He has ascertained that, taking the figures for the last ten years as a fair averbrought in England every year, 750,-000 in France, 1,400,000 in Italy, 3,300,000 in Germany and 5,500,000 in the United States.

It is not to be inferred from this that the people of one country are much more prone to litigation than are the people of another, but the explanation is to be found in the fact that the conditions of litigation vary exceedingly. Going to law in England is very expensive business, for it entails outlays in the form of costs and expenses so large that many of the courts are practically closed to persons of modest means and a long litigation unsuccessfully pursued ends often in bankruptcy. In France the number of lawsuits is kept down through the general practice of "arbitration," as many as 100,000 cases in a year, especially those arising from disputes over wages, being settled by this agency without onerous great majority of cases are petty ones, involving a small amount of money and due, many of them, to customs or usages which are not sufficiently defined to be, in all cases, similarly understood by both parties to an agreement. This is especially the case in the farming districts of Germany and there are turing districts, too. The number of cases credited to the United States seems enormous, but it is probably accurate. There are, for example, eleven district courts for the disposal of civil cases in New York city. In one of these courts, by recent report, the number of actions brought in a year was shown to be 9,100. These courts have before them each year on the average 75,000 cases. The cases brought in the state courts of New York amount in a year to about 150,000, and of those brought in the federal courts New York furnishes a very large number. Taking the whole country through it is seen that the average number of cases per thousand of population is in the neighborhood of 75 to 85. The number of lawyers in the United States is materially larger than in other country in the world, and the amounts in dispute here are much greater than else-

When one can read accounts of resuscitations of persons supposed to have been killed by electrical shocks, it can but strike the inquiring mind somewhat unpleasantly when the announcement is made that criminals are put to death by electricity. Of course, the autopsy after the execution settles the matter for good and all, but the intelligent physician must have a very vivid imagination and a great deal of nerve deliber
The following letter from the trainer:

August 9th, 1895.

Your horse is 15% hands high and will weigh 1,050 pounds, Is a well porportioned horse and safe for any one to drive; unusually elever for a young horse. I took the horse perfectly green and with six weeks handling drove him one-eighth of a mile at a 2:40 gait and could have driven him faster had the track been good. Your horse with any kind of chance will develop into a horse that will beat with all ease a 2:20 gait. There is something remarkable about your horse, every time I work him he shows an increase in speed.

Not long since a man received a shock from a dynamo and was apparently dead for an hour, then artificial respirations and rhythmical tractions restored him. So clearly are the methods of treatment indicated, that certain electric companies have had members of their orce drilled in all of the nec manipulations of resuscitation, and have prepared on their own premises apartments with all of the requisite appliances for immediate use in case of accident.

It seems an almost unquestionable fact that electricity does not kill unless the body is burned to a degree almost sufficient in itself to cause death. Of course, one cannot count with any accuracy on what the effect of electricity may be. It would seem that persons differ in their ability to withstand the shock of this most mysterious element. If the victim is left to himself or the accident occurs where there is no help at hand, in due course of time he dies.

When the application of the current is the result of a judicial decision, he is at once cut to pieces, and, of course, there is no telling what effect efforts to restore him might have had. There is a rather uncomfortable feeling growing up in the community against electrical execution.-N. Y. Ledger.
